

Publieke Omroep

In spite of the limited budget available, it was possible to create a powerful concept. The interior design is timeless with colorful accents. In 2006 COEN! redesigned the television test picture to symbolize the National Broadcasting Channel. The well-known test picture was translated into colourful art forms on wall panels and window accessories throughout the media building. Based on the same design, a series of 16 colourful giclées were produced, which when taken together form the complete test picture. Each giclée is available in a limited edition of 50 prints. Each print is signed, numbered and framed in aluminum behind glass. They are available via COEN!

